Classic-Automatic GMT

Released in January 2011, Orient Watch Co., Ltd.'s Classic-Automatic GMT watch features a newly-developed mechanical movement.

Its mechanical movement, the heart of the watch, is only 27mm in diameter. This tiny heart, which consists of 186 minute parts, enables the watch to keep time with precision accuracy.

GMT stands for Greenwich Mean Time. This function uses a 24-hour hand to display multiple times (dual times) including the GMT. In addition to this GMT function, which enable you to move the GMT hand so that it simultaneously displays the time of another country of your choice, the Classic-Automatic GMT comes with a hand-winding function and a second hand halt mechanism. The model also boasts 40P51, a new mechanical movement with Power Reserve indicator.

Combining a simple, contemporary case design with technologies refined over many years, the ORIENT Classic-Automatic GMT is a standout ORIENT mechanical watch with new functions.
